

In 2007, it was discovered that Alexander McLean did not have a headstone where he was buried in the Prairie Home Cemetery in Moorhead. The community donated enough money to pay for a new headstone. During Law Enforcement Memorial Week in May, 2008, relatives of Officer McLean were invited to see the new headstone and participate in a ceremony recognizing Officer McLean's death in the line of duty.